Jaguar XK120 DHC

The XK120 is, without doubt, a great classic car. The DHC is certainly the most usable version, offering open tourer fresh air and excellent weather protection all together. This XK120 DHC came initially from California USA, an origine which guarantees the super sound structure of this XK, and arrived into a Belgian classic car collection. Being a matching numbers car and having a beautiful original red leather interior + very attractive wood veneer on dashboard and door cappings, it was clear this XK wouldn't need a lot to be back on the road again. A newly rebuilt engine by VSE Jaguar engine specialists in the UK was undertaken. We, in our specialized classic car workshop, took care of the complete general recommissioning and fitting at the same time a new electrical wiring loom and a new double duck hood. The rather straightforward sorting-out on this particular XK120 made it possible to offer now lots of quality
