Ferrari 360 Modena F1 Gearbox 2001 LHD Every sportscar enthusiast wants to own once in his lifetime a Ferrari! For some this step into Ferrari ownership is difficult to take, just because they don't see themselves in a bright red, spectacular, noisy sportscar, as 95% of all Ferraris in reality are. Luckily for those enthusiasts (I am myself one of them, but it seems also Enzo Ferrari himself was) Ferrari produced also gentlemen sport Coupés. The 250 GTE from the early sixties was one of the first of such Ferraris. I see this particular 360 Modena also in the same turismo spirit. First of all there is the smooth, very elegant design by Pininfarina, but secondly the well chosen discreet colour combination of medium grey metallic combined with a dark red leather interior, which makes this Ferrari 360 Modena blend-in easily with modern traffic. On the other hand this 360 Modena remains a true Ferrari powered by a fantastic centrally mounted V8 engine producing a mighty 400 HP. Fifteen years ago the power to weight ratio for this model was rather innovative thanks to the use of a new all aluminium spaceframe chassis and body, reducing weight but increasing rigidity. The sporty drive gets even better when manipulating the F1-style sequential gearbox with which this 360 Modena has been fitted from new. Difficult to believe that this 360 Modena is 15 years old. The very low 38.000 Kms from new and the meticulous full service history (belts replaced 10.000 Km ago) + good care of the previous 3 French owners must be the explanation for the still as-new condition this Ferrari is in today. Finally, the possibility of Ferrari ownership becomes totally realistic at an attractive selling price of: 59.500 Euro. What are you waiting for?
