Lancia Flaminia Pininfarina Coupé 2,5 l. 1960 LHD To me this Lancia Flaminia represents the ultimate Italian "chique" of the 60-ies. Pininfarina designed this top-range Coupé as a production variant of the unique Florida II prototype and was also the preferred personal transport of Pinin himself. This stylish Coupé was initially sold new to Portugal and resided all her life in this warm climate. This fact together with the continuous meticulous maintainance resulted in the best Flaminia Pininfarina Coupé I have ever seen. The car's structure is super-sound and the overall detailing impressive. The very attractive color combination of light metallic grey with the somptuous grey/blue leather interior enhance even more the elegance of this Lancia. Also mechanically this Flaminia is a little jewel. All her mechanical components are in tip-top meticulously restored condition. The 2,5 liter all aluminium V6 engine provides smooth power all the way. Thanks to the for this model typical transaxle concept the road behaviour is just perfect. In conclusion: What other top-range styling icon apart from this Flaminia Coupé can offer you that much quality and elegance at a give-away price ?
